

Abstract

A device for detecting an obstacle underride is described which is situated on the vehicle front. The device detects an obstacle underride via a vertically positioned distance measuring device. Radar sensors, ultrasonic sensors, or video sensors may 5 used for distance measuring.

(Figure 2)